

MATT MCGINN – BIO

A singer, songwriter, multi-instrumentalist, and producer from Co. Down, McGinn crafts songs that are a personal representation of his life experience. A former coal man, he found himself somewhat out of his water studying music at Queen's University in Belfast.

His third album 'Lessons of War' propelled him to prominence with his song 'Bubblegum', co-written with Mick Flannery, that echoed the Troubles in which he grew up, while his 2020 duet with Aoife Scott 'Time Well Spent' became one of the biggest Irish folk songs of the year. He has since released several successful singles and albums, earning praise from critics and fellow musicians alike, and his upcoming work features songs co-written by Paul Brady, Foy Vance to name a few.

For the rest of this year Matt will be hitting the road with legendary songwriter Paul Brady, who duets on and co-wrote Matt's 2025 single, 'Analog Man in a Digital World'
